taking into account the different national realities, capacities and levels of development and respecting national policies and priorities;

20. Decides to mainstream the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, as appropriate, into the work of each fund, programme and specialized agency, while preserving their respective mandates and respecting the intergovernmentally agreed decisions of their governing bodies, and in this regard the United Nations development system shall:

(a) Continue to allocate resources to realize the development objectives of developing countries, so as to ensure that no one is left behind and to reach the furthest behind first, while taking into account the universal and inclusive nature of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development;

(b) Ensure a coherent approach to addressing the interconnections and cross-cutting elements across the Sustainable Development Goals and targets;

(c) Ensure a balanced and integrated approach within the system towards its support to the implementation of all of the Sustainable Development Goals and targets, in accordance with each entity's mandate, including by building capacity and expertise within the system in areas that have not been adequately supported, taking into account the need to avoid duplication and overlap and strengthen the inter-agency approach;

21. Requests the Secretary-General to present a report to the Economic and Social Council by the end of April 2017, for its review and recommendations, to be submitted to the General Assembly, for consideration and action at its seventy-second session, containing the following:

(a) An independent system-wide mapping of mandates and existing capacities of the United Nations development system, including its support to States in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals and targets, with a view to determining the gaps and limitations in coverage, as well as possible overlaps, and addressing them, in order to ensure that there is adequate support from the system to the implementation of targets, while recognizing that the implementation of the targets at the national level should be guided by the priorities, plans and choices of States;

(b) A system-wide action plan, with timetables, allocation of responsibilities and accountability frameworks and resource framework, in line with the mandate of each entity, to enhance, accelerate and coordinate efforts, assess overall progress and identify the obstacles and challenges of the United Nations development system in supporting the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals in consultation with Member States;

22. Calls upon the United Nations development system, at the request of national Governments, to strengthen its support to the building and development of national capacity, both technical and functional, including by, but not restricted to:

(b) Providing integrated support for the implementation of, follow-up to and reporting on internationally agreed development goals and development-related frameworks;

(c) Providing integrated, evidence-based policy advice to assist countries in mainstreaming the Sustainable Development Goals into national and local plans, implementing such plans and reporting on national implementation;

(d) Developing country-specific, voluntary and flexible methodologies to identify and put into practice the most relevant interlinkages among the Sustainable Development Goals and targets at the request of national Governments;

(e) Strengthening its support to national institutions in planning, management and evaluation capacities, including statistical capacities, to collect, analyse and increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable disaggregated data and address the gap in data collection, and in so doing utilizing these national capacities to the fullest extent possible in the context of United Nations operational activities for development;

(f) Supporting and utilizing, to the fullest extent possible, national public and private systems for support services, as appropriate, including for procurement, especially of locally sourced goods and services, as well as information technology, telecommunications, travel and financial systems, and national professional staff and consultants;

23. Reiterates that the United Nations development system should mainstream and enhance its support to South-South and triangular cooperation, at the request and with the ownership and leadership of developing countries, through a system-wide approach, taking into account that South-South cooperation is a complement to, rather than a substitute for, North-South cooperation, in line with the Nairobi outcome document of the High-level United Nations Conference on South-South Cooperation;⁹

24. Reaffirms the mandate and the central role of the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation as the focal point for promoting and facilitating South-

South and triangular cooperation for development on a global and United Nations system-wide basis, and reiterates its request to the Secretary-General, noting that further deliberation by all States on the options presented in his report on measures to further strengthen the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation¹⁰ will be required before a decision is taken on the idea of separating the Office for South-South Cooperation as operationally autonomous from the United Nations Development Programme, to present, as part of his comprehensive report to the General Assembly at its seventy-second session, in consultation with all States, the Office for South-South Cooperation and the United Nations Development Programme, a comprehensive proposal on concrete ways to enhance the role of and improve the impact of the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation under the auspices of the United Nations Development Programme, including in the areas of financial, human and budgetary resources, including through the potential appointment of a Special Representative of the Secretary-General on South-South Cooperation, and at the same time recommending specific contributions of the United Nations Development Programme under such a change, with a view to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development;

25. Recalls paragraph 17 of its resolution 69/239, and reiterates its request to the Administrator of the United Nations Development Programme, as Chair of the United Nations Development Group, to establish a more formalized and strengthened inter-agency mechanism, coordinated by the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation, with a view to encouraging joint support to South-South and triangular initiatives and sharing information on development activities and results achieved by various organizations through their respective business models in support of South-South and triangular cooperation, calls upon the United Nations development system to designate representational focal points to join the mechanism, and requests the Administrator to give the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation the opportunity to be represented more regularly in strategic and coordination mechanisms of the United Nations Development Group when matters affecting South-South and triangular cooperation are being discussed, and in this regard welcomes the progress made by the South-South and Triangular Cooperation Task Team of the United Nations Development Group to this effect;

26. Calls upon the entities of the United Nations development system, in full compliance with their respective mandates, to enhance cooperation and coordination with humanitarian assistance and peacebuilding efforts at the national level in countries facing humanitarian emergencies, conflict and post-conflict situations and countries and peoples under foreign occupation, in compliance with international law, at their request and with their consent and in accordance with national ownership, plans and priorities, mindful that development-related support to programme countries remains the priority of the system, and in this regard, emphasizes that:

(a) In humanitarian emergencies, there is a need to move beyond short-term interventions towards contributing to longer-term development gains, while underlining that strengthening the links between the development and humanitarian efforts should not result in the diversion of development resources to humanitarian assistance and vice versa, in affected countries;

¹⁰ See SSC/18/3.

(b) In countries in conflict and post-conflict situations, the entities of the United Nations development system by improving coordination and synergy to maximize the impacts, results and effectiveness of their support to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, can contribute to sustaining peace, in accordance with national plans, needs, priorities, at their request, and respecting national ownership, provided that this does not result in the diversion of development resources to peacebuilding efforts;

(c) Further effective measures and actions should be taken, in conformity with international law, to remove the obstacles to the full realization of the right of self-determination of peoples living under colonial and foreign occupation, which continue to adversely affect their economic and social development as well as their environment;

III. Funding of operational activities for development of the United Nations system

27. Stresses the need for adequate quantity and quality of funding to support United Nations operational activities for development, as well as the need to improve funding practices to make funding sufficient and more predictable, flexible, effective and efficient, less earmarked and better aligned with the national priorities and plans of programme countries, including those in the United Nations Development Assistance Framework or other common planning frameworks, as well as with the strategic plans and mandates of United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies, in order to enable the United Nations development system to work in a coordinated manner;

28. Also stresses that core resources are the bedrock of the United Nations operational activities for development, owing to their untied nature, and in this regard expresses grave concern at the continuing and accelerated decline in the amount of core contributions to the entities of the United Nations development system in recent years;

29. Notes that non-core resources represent an important contribution to the overall resource base of United Nations operational activities for development, as a complement to and not a substitute for core resources, and also notes that non-core resources pose their own challenges, by potentially increasing transaction costs, fragmentation, competition and overlap among entities and providing disincentives for pursuing system-wide priorities, strategic positioning and coherence, and may also potentially distort programme priorities regulated by intergovernmental bodies and processes;

30. Expresses concern that aggregate/net official development assistance has remained at approximately 0.30 per cent since 2013, calls for the fulfilment of all official development assistance commitments, including the commitments by many developed countries to achieve the target of 0.7 per cent of gross national income for official development assistance to developing countries, as well as the target of at least 0.20 per cent for least developed countries, and calls on those developed countries that have not yet done so to make concrete efforts in this regard in accordance with their commitments;

31. Notes with concern that the mandate contained in its resolution 67/226 with respect to the development and operationalization of the concept of “critical mass” of core resources has not been fulfilled as originally foreseen, and in this regard reiterates the potential positive impact of determining the level of critical mass of core resources for the entities of the United Nations development system;

32. Reaffirms the importance of accountability, transparency, efficiency and effectiveness in the funding of the United Nations operational activities for development;

33. Urges donor countries to maintain and substantially increase their core contributions to the United Nations development system, in particular its funds, programmes and specialized agencies, and to contribute on a multi-year basis, in a sustained and predictable manner;

34. Also urges donor countries providing non-core contributions to make them more flexible and aligned with the national priorities and plans of programme countries and the strategic plans and mandates of United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies, as well as to reduce transaction costs and to streamline and harmonize requirements related to reporting, monitoring and evaluation, to assign resources, as much as possible, at the beginning of the annual planning period, while encouraging multi-year duration of implementation of development-related activities, and to give priority to pooled, thematic and joint funding mechanisms applied at the global, regional and country levels and limit earmarking to broader, sector-specific activities in accordance with national priorities;

35. Urges the entities of the United Nations development system, through their governing bodies, to take concrete steps to address, on a continuous basis, the decline of core contributions and the growing imbalance between core and non-core resources to ensure an adequate and predictable level of core funding, including by, but not limited to:

(a) Exploring options on how to incentivize donor countries to reverse the decline of their core contributions and for substantially increasing these contributions on a multi-year basis;

(b) Adhering, in the context of each entity’s strategic planning and budgetary processes, to the concept of critical mass of core resources, which includes the level of resources adequate to respond to the needs of programme countries in their efforts to implement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and to produce the results expected in their strategic plans, including administrative, management and programme costs, with a view to a decision being taken on this issue by their respective governing bodies in 2017;

(c) Exploring options to broaden the donor base in order to reduce the reliance of the system on a limited number of donors, with a view to diversifying potential sources of core funding for operational activities for development, in alignment with the core principles of the United Nations development system and with full respect for the national priorities of programme countries;

(d) Ensuring full cost recovery, proportionally, from core and non-core funding sources, and avoiding the use of core or regular resources to subsidize activities financed by non-core or extrabudgetary resources;

36. Decides that all earmarked contributions, except those made through cost-sharing agreements, will be assessed at a rate of 10 per cent levied to fund system-wide programming and coherence;

37. Urges the United Nations development system to mobilize resources for its operational activities for development to complement core resources by encouraging flexible, adequate, predictable and less earmarked funding, including through well-designed, transparent and accountable funding mechanisms;

38. Also urges the United Nations development system to mobilize external funding sources, including by exploring innovative funding approaches and deepening partnerships with international financial institutions, with a view to diversifying potential sources of funding, especially core funding, for operational activities for development, in line with the core principles of the present resolution and with full respect for the national priorities and plans of programme countries;

39. Expresses its serious concern at the fact that the share of expenditure for operational activities for development of the United Nations system in the least developed countries is declining, requests the United Nations development system to provide enhanced financial and technical support, including prioritization of these allocations to the least developed countries, while reaffirming that the least developed countries, as the most vulnerable group of countries, need enhanced global support to overcome the structural challenges that they face in implementing the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and also requests the United Nations development system to provide assistance to graduating countries in the formulation and implementation of their national transition strategies and to consider country-specific support for graduated countries for a fixed period of time and in a predictable manner;

40. Requests the entities of the United Nations development system to align their next integrated budgets with the present resolution and, in that context, to continue to organize structured dialogues on how to fund the development results agreed in the strategic planning cycles of their respective entities;

IV. Strengthening of the intergovernmental governance of operational activities for development of the United Nations system

41. Stresses that the United Nations development system must move towards a governance architecture that is transparent, accountable and responsive to Member States, and able to enhance the coordination, coherence, effectiveness and efficiency of the operational activities for development within and among all levels in order to enable system-wide strategic planning, implementation, reporting and evaluation to better support the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development;

42. Decides that the United Nations development system should implement the provisions of paragraph 45 of resolution 70/305, in which the General Assembly stressed the need to ensure equal and fair distribution of senior posts in the system based on gender balance and as wide a geographical basis as possible, and on the principle that the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity are the paramount considerations in the recruitment and performance of international civil servants, and that, as a general rule, there should be no monopoly on senior posts in the United Nations system by nationals of any State or group of States;

43. Calls upon entities of the United Nations development system to continue efforts to achieve gender balance in appointments within the United Nations system at the central, regional and country levels for positions that affect operational activities for development, including appointments to resident coordinator and other high-level posts, with due regard to the representation of women from programme countries, in particular developing countries, and to regions that are underrepresented, while keeping in mind the principle of equitable geographical representation;

44. Decides to enhance the oversight of Member States over the United Nations development system, and in this regard requests the Joint Inspection Unit to present, for consideration by the General Assembly at its seventy-second session, a comprehensive report containing options to improve the governance architecture of the United Nations development system, with a view to:

(a) Strengthening the role and capacity of the Economic and Social Council to coordinate and guide the United Nations development system, including through the revitalization of its operational activities for development segment, so that the Council may better fulfil its mandate;

(b) Defining a clear and accountable leadership modality for the system and improving its transparency, accountability and responsiveness to Member States, including through the development of clear reporting lines to the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly;

(c) Enhancing the transparency of the activities of the United Nations System Chief Executives Board for Coordination, its High-level Committee on Programmes, High-level Committee on Management and the United Nations Development Group, as well as the accountability of those entities to the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly, in order to ensure strengthened engagement with and responsiveness to Member States;

(d) Exploring options for the United Nations Development Group to evolve into a United Nations development system-wide mechanism with a structured and fully accountable relationship with the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly;

(e) Reducing fragmentation and addressing gaps and overlaps within the governance architecture of the system;

(f) Enhancing system-wide coherence, reducing duplications and building synergy across governing bodies of the entities of the United Nations development system, especially with reference to issues with cross-cutting impact, including discussing them in the existing joint meetings;

(g) Ensuring equitable geographical representation in the Executive Boards, paying due regard to regions that are underrepresented, and improving the working methods of the Executive Boards;

(h) Ensuring that the entities of the United Nations development system adopt and abide by clear rules of procedure regarding the dissemination of all documents and draft decisions, thereby allowing adequate time for prior consultation with Member States in their decision-making processes;

(i) Assessing the budgetary, financial and human resources necessary for implementing these provisions;

45. Also decides that any resource or policy commitment of all entities of the United Nations development system, including the United Nations Development Group, to non-United Nations processes should be formally decided at the intergovernmental level through relevant governing bodies;

V. Improving the functioning of the United Nations development system

46. Affirms the need to move towards integrated action in response to the integrated and indivisible nature of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, while stressing the importance of strengthening national ownership and leadership by building on existing efforts to operate as a system within and among countries and at the regional and global levels, as well as enhancing the coordination, coherence, effectiveness and efficiency of operational activities for development, to address the needs and priorities of programme countries and in line with their respective national plans and strategies;

47. Recognizes that the presence of the United Nations development system at the country level should be tailored to meet the specific development challenges and needs of programme countries, as required to implement national plans, strategies and programmes in line with the priorities agreed with national authorities to be supported by the system;

48. Reaffirms the central role and the importance of the active and full participation of national Governments in the preparation, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework or other common planning frameworks in order to enhance ownership and achieve full alignment of operational activities with national priorities, challenges, planning and programming;

49. Emphasizes that programme countries should have access to and benefit from the full range of mandates and resources of the United Nations development system, whereby national Governments should determine which resident and non-resident United Nations organizations will best respond to the specific needs and priorities of individual countries, including in the case of non-resident agencies through hosting arrangements with resident organizations, as appropriate;

50. Requests the United Nations development system to continue to support the full implementation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework or other common planning frameworks and to simplify those framework processes in order to reduce the workload of national Governments and other stakeholders, decrease the time necessary for the preparation of relevant documents and ensure alignment with Government planning cycles, thus improving the focus on results, promoting a better division of labour and enhancing the inter-agency approach within the United Nations development system at the country level;

51. Also requests the United Nations development system to ensure that reports to the Governments of the respective programme countries on the results achieved by the United Nations country teams as a whole are structured around the United Nations Development Assistance Framework or other common planning frameworks and are linked to national development results, and in this regard requests the Secretary-General, as part of his regular reporting to the Economic and Social Council, to provide an update on progress achieved;

52. Further requests the United Nations development system to further simplify and harmonize agency-specific programming instruments, processes and reporting with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework or other common planning frameworks, and requests the United Nations country teams to present annual comprehensive country-level system-wide reports to national Governments based on the advances, results and impact of their activities, including on the implementation of those frameworks, with data-based evidence;

53. Acknowledges that the resident coordinator system, which encompasses all organizations of the United Nations development system dealing with operational activities for development, aims at improving the efficiency and effectiveness of operational activities for development at the country level through the promotion of more strategic support for national plans and priorities, makes operations more efficient and reduces costs for Governments;
